The Spectator

We wonder who can provide, free-gratis-without-charge, a very great many song sheets, for distribution among the thousands who will no doubt congregate, as in previous years, on the Borough Playground, as, once again, we observe the anniversary of the Nation's birth and draw on precious memories of the past for the hope, courage, and inspiration which America needs as she copes with the depressing things which everywhere abound.

The affair will have particular significance this year because of the Washington Bi-Centennial, and the more attention we pay to that great man the more we shall realize the tremendous debt which all generations of Americans owe to him, and that's not a platitude, either.

We also heard that the coming Fourth marks the 100th anniversary of the first public singing of "America," and if that is true it affords another reason why our holiday this year should be regarded as of primary importance.

Mindful of the fact that not everybody is able to stand around for the ceremonies, chairs in selected places will be reserved for those who ought to have them, and a request of that nature to Mr. McCrery, when you send your little check to him, is sure to receive the careful attention of the gentlemen of the Legion who will be the hosts of the evening.

And speaking of checks, it is hoped there will be quite a handsome response to the requests which went out this week to all of the elect, as the project certainly warrants the help of those who can possibly afford it, an altogether splendid evening, and who wants to look in on a show provided by another fellow when the cost is calculated to be defrayed by every fellow and his wife, and also those who ain't got neither?

That does not mean, however, that the citizen who cannot possibly make the grade, on account of the pressure which is on him, should not come around. In such a case, the will should be regarded as par with the way, and "welcome one and all" shall be the slogan, but pay if you can, surely, and so you will, no doubt.

Those lads who are still getting the breaks should come across with a fiver, as there will be many gaps to bridge and five from one will offset five from none, whilst ten will be twice that much, as you can see.

Realtors and bachelors are asked to please give their shirts on account of the new tax bill not affecting them at all.

Harry Simpson is arranging for the fireworks and his first report is to the effect that this year's display will just be about the finest ever, a startling array of gorgeous masterpieces, the likes of which you never saw before, bewildering beauty which simply staggers imagination, and the life and deeds of General Washington will afford the motif of many of them.

Music and singing will be on a more lavish scale than ever and it will be quite some hosannah when 10,000 lusty throats bestir the night winds with their strident salutations.

Something should be said about money matters, as it would not appear that part has been mentioned, and so all and sundry are most respectfully informed that a dollar or two should be contributed by every man and woman who can possibly manage it, and those who do give a dollar or two (aye, we'll not be sore, if you send more) will receive their acknowledgements and applause in the columns of "OUR TOWN" next week, not that you need that sort of thing at all, but chiefly because we cannot indefinitely work in the dark and continue to get things done.

Modesty is not always served by being inconspicuous, if you know what we mean. The girl who wears stock-

Lawson Yow and Julia Poorman Announced as Winners of Nellie M. Wetherill Award at School

Presentation Made by Mrs. W. G. Briner, New President of P. T. A.

OTHER AWARDS MADE

Lawson Yow and Julia Poorman were announced as winners of the Nellie M. Wetherill award at the Narberth Public School last Friday.

The award, created by Miss Wetherill, for many years a teacher in the Narberth Schools, is made on the basis of outstanding citizenship and service, together with high scholarship and moral conduct.

The presentation was made by Mrs. W. G. Briner, newly-elected president of the Parent-Teacher Association.

The Dr. Benjamin Rush Chapter, D. A. R., award for excellence in Eighth Grade American History, was won by Archie Sparks. It was presented by Mrs. Frederick T. Van Auken, a former member of the School Board.

The American Legion award, which was presented on Memorial Day, was won by Dan Hess and Helen Chubb.

The School Merit awards, the highest school honor which is given to the boys and girls who in the mind of the principal and faculty best display the spirit of citizenship and service, together with superior scholarship, were presented to the following pupils by Principal W. James Drennen:

Sixth Grade — Donald Deaves, Charles Timm, Dora Enz, Billy Furber, Marie Tapp, Kathryn Bailey, Myrtle Hager, Julia Rossetti, Lucy Censore.

Eighth Grade—Eleanor Briner, Nelson Bucher, Allan Worrell, Helen Brock, Wayne Deaves, Jean Harkness, Joseph Perry, Donald Vogts, Anita McFarland, Eunice Griswold, Mary Nulty, Eunice Caldwell, Lois Enz, Betty Murray.

Certificates of perfect attendance were awarded to pupils who were neither tardy nor absent during the term. Those who already held certificates were awarded seals.

Those receiving awards were:

Sixth Grade—Certificates, Robert Tyson, Donald Deaves, Iris Goodrich, Kathryn Bailey; seals, Peggy Stam, David Duncan, Billy Burrowes.

Seventh Grade—Certificates, Betty Lou Nold, Jane Nash, Julia Hess, Sam Pruitt, Francis Bossone, Drayton Benner; seals, Sam McCartney, Edmund Bossone, Mary Alice Krauskop.

The Dr. Benjamin Rush Chapter of N. S. D. A. R. will hold a benefit garden and bridge party at the home of Mrs. John C. Nash, 80 Wynnedale avenue, Narberth, this Friday afternoon at 2 P. M. The charge is 50 cents and reservations may be made with Mrs. Nash. A cordial invitation is extended to the members of the community.

Summer School Opens in Borough on July 11

The summer session of the Narberth School will open on July 11 and continue for five weeks till August 5, it was announced this week by Principal W. James Drennen. It will be conducted six days a week by students of the School of Education at the University of Pennsylvania. Mr. Drennen requests that parents who wish their children to attend and have not sent in cards to that effect communicate with him at the school office. The session is conducted for the benefit of those pupils who have failed in any subjects or those who wish to strengthen themselves in any particular subject.

Founding of Lower Merion Academy 120 Years Ago to be Commemorated on Fourth

Old Structure in Cynwyd Founded With Trust Fund of 800 Pounds; Teachers Collected Pay From Students, Boarding With Parents

Plans for a July Fourth celebration have been made by representatives of Bala-Cynwyd's community organizations, to be held at the Cynwyd School, Levering Mill road and Bryn Mawr avenue. Included in the program will be a brief pageant commemorating the founding, 120 years ago, of the Lower Merion Academy, which still stands. For the following information about this old Main Line landmark, the writer is indebted to Dora Harvey Develin and Luther C. Parsons.

By THOMAS A. ELWOOD

Jacob Jones, a Friend, born 1713, anticipated by many years this country's public school system. His deep-seated concern for the welfare of young people and his anxiety that their education should include more than the three R's, led to the setting aside of eight acres of his farm and an 800-pound trust fund, when he died in 1807. When the trust became valuable, trustees carried out his instructions, and in 1812 erected the Lower Merion Academy.

At that time the farthest output of the West was Fort Dearborn, Illinois. Public schools were not to be founded in the United States until 1857.

The Academy was a genuine one with a classical course. It was a

St. Margaret's School Wins Philadelphia Track Crown

The young athletes of St. Margaret's School, Narberth, won the Philadelphia district track and field title of parochial schools last Saturday at St. Joseph's College Stadium in a meet sponsored by the Knights of Columbus.

The victory of St. Margaret's was scored without a single first place, but consistent placing in the various events turned the trick. The Narberth School topped its nearest competitor by one and one-half points, winning the meet with a score of 14.

Dr. Steckbeck Re-Elected as School Board Treasurer

Dr. Walter Steckbeck was re-elected treasurer of the Narberth School Board at its June meeting last Friday night. Other officers of the Board hold over, their terms not expiring at this time.

The appointment of I. B. Knoll as Eighth Grade science, metal work and mechanical drawing teacher was approved by the Board. A graduate of Millersville State Teachers' College, Mr. Knoll has been doing work toward his degree at Carnegie Tech and Penn State.

Rotarians Frolic in Annual Picnic

Baseball, Horseshoes and Tennis Feature Afternoon of Exercise

Some twenty members of the Bala-Cynwyd-Narberth Rotary Club woke up Wednesday morning with sore muscles and a pronounced tired feeling. The annual outing of the club was held on Tuesday.

As guests of Barclay L. Jones, headmaster of the Friends' Central School, the service club men made strenuous use of the baseball field, horse-shoe pitching arena and tennis courts. The affair, which began at three o'clock, was the prelude to a supper at the Overbrook Golf Club, in which the wives of the members joined.

A lively game of "movin's up" was the principal attraction in the afternoon. Several members who had not touched a bat, ball or glove in many years chalked up home runs and stolen bases with an energy which belied their rustiness. A few, whose slender figures had given way to the advancing years, contented themselves with maintaining a conservative position in the outfield.

Following showers and the assumption of more formal garb, the group joined the feminine members of the family and proceeded to enjoy the annual ladies' night of the club. Some snappy piano music, the presentation of several gifts, and a mock trial constituted the entertainment.

Mrs. Ralph S. Dunne, wife of the retiring president of the club, was presented with a pocketbook; Mrs. James D. Moore, who has composed the presentation verses during the past year, was in turn given a present—a pair of silk stockings, accompanied by a verse from the pen of J. Bedford Wooley. Alexander J. Esrey, who joined the hole-in-one club a couple of weeks ago, was presented with a loving cup, consisting of painted inscriptions on a tin pitcher.

A mock murder trial completed the evening. Dr. Romaine C. Hoffman, chosen as the murderer, was under some difficulties. He picked as his victim J. L. McCrery, who obstinately refused to die when strangled in the dark. R. L. Watrous, who was next attacked, gave up the ghost with appropriate screams. W. Russell Green had little difficulty in convicting the murderer.

Playground Season Opens July 5; Assistants Named

The season at the Narberth Playground will open officially on July 5 and continue until the last day of August, Dr. LeRoy A. King, president of the Recreation Board, announced this week.

The activities will again be in charge of Allan B. Weatherill, physical director of the Narberth Public School, assisted by Charles McGowen and Miss Florence Miesen.

Davismen Turn Defeat Into Victory, Downing Paoli 9-5 for Seventh Straight Win

Thrills a-Plenty Provided Fans as Narberth Overhauls Defending Champs

SCORED SIX RUNS IN 6TH

By JOHN MULLIGAN

People attend baseball games for various reasons. Some like to witness a pitchers' battle, others are excited by being on hand when one club, or maybe both, are in a hitting mood and baseballs are slipped to all corners of the park. However, no matter which way you figure it out, everybody likes the unexpected. This not only is true in baseball but in life itself. And the point of all this is that Narberth gave the fans more thrills Saturday in defeating Paoli 9-5 for victory No. 7 than the donating public had enjoyed in many a moon.

The final score itself fails to tell the real story. Gene Davis' gang of apple maulers showed John Public just why they are one of the most feared aggregations in the Main Line League by putting on a sixth inning rally in the face of certain defeat that sent the fans into a frenzy of excitement.

Paoli's representatives came to the Playground with no great record to boast of, even though they are defending champions of the circuit. On the other hand the Davismen had an unblemished record and sought to keep it so. Imagine the disappointment of the town diamond devotees when the Umbach organization went right to work and ran up a 5-1 lead by the third inning, all the while having little trouble with Pitcher Bud Walker, new southpaw twirler of the Borough forces.

Narberth tabbed one run in the initial inning and after that sat back and seemed willing enough to acknowledge defeat, since a youngster named Al Willard was puzzling them no end with a slow hook. He had whiffed three consecutive men in the third after Howdy Powell had drawn a pass and Walter MacGregor had pushed him around to third with a single. Barney Slaughter, Bob Gilfillan and Cliff Mooney, three of the Borough's hardest hitters, approached the plate and walked back to the bench again after doing no damage to anything but their batting average.

Then the sixth inning fireworks! Mooney popped to the keystone, but Doc "Mule" Walker slapped a single and Harry King, getting the spirit of the moment, socked a hard double. Then another one-bagger by Bud Walker admitted two runs and the fans began to stir excitedly. Diminutive Harry Francis banged out another safety as Pitcher Willard looked anxiously toward the Narberth bench, and when Francis became trapped between first and second, Bud Walker edged up the baseline, then made a bee-line for the plate and made it. The crowd went wild with glee. Howdy Powell drove in Francis later with a bingle and two more final runs dented the plate on a hard poke off Barney Slaughter's bat.

Straw Vote on Merger Now Stands 290 to 66

Twenty-five more votes were added during the past week to the total of those opposed to the merger of the Borough with Lower Merion Township, while but six were received indicating approval of the step.

The vote in the poll being taken by "Our Town" now stands at 290 opposed and 66 for the merger. The percentage of those opposed to the proposal is now 81½ of those voting, or a majrity of over 4 to 1.

Those who have not yet voted may do so by filling in the coupon in this issue and depositing it at Davis' or the Post Office or mailing it to "Our Town."

Two Tight Tilts Lost by Narberth

Homer Decides One U. Darby Game, Base Hit Needed for Other

By JOHN MULLIGAN

Narberth dropped two tough ball games during the week, both to Upper Darby, 9-8 and 5-3.

Since Monday's game was a Del-Mont loop engagement, it caused Narberth's stock to drop in said whirl, while the Wednesday night battle means that Narberth, temporarily at least, is out of first place in the Main Line League, and that Bryn Mawr now reigns supreme.

The Davismen trailed Eddie Hare's club hopelessly in the Del-Mont game, then started a rally in their last turn at bat that had the crowd in a frenzy, and acknowledged defeat only when they couldn't muster a base hit when one would have broken up the ball game, since two runners were on base and three already had crossed the plate.

The other contest was a heartbreaker, all right. For five of the seven sessions it was anybody's ball game, with the home team holding a measly 3-2 lead as Upper Darby prepared for their sixth turn at bat.

George Gallagher, sensational shortstopper of the Haremen, walked up to the plate and promptly poled a long home run with two men on base, sending the State Roaders out to a two-run margin, which was too much for the homesters, even though they loaded the bags in their final turn with the willow. Pitcher Joe Maguire was called on to pitch plenty well before the last man was retired, and thus Narberth slipped slowly and reluctantly back into second place.

The score by innings Monday night:

Upper Darby	0	1	1	3	2	2	0	—	9
Narberth	0	0	0	0	0	5	3	—	8

Wednesday's game:

Narberth	0	0	0	2	0	1	0	—	3
Upper Darby	0	0	1	0	1	3	x	—	5

Dr. Boericke Elected Head of Institute of Homeopathy

Dr. Garth W. Boericke, of 525 Kenilworth road, Merion, has been elected president of the American Institute of Homeopathy. His election took place at the Institute's convention held in Washington, D. C., last week.

Dr. Boericke is professor and head of the department of materia medica and therapeutics at Hahnemann Medical College, Philadelphia.

He was graduated from the medical school of the University of Michigan in 1918 and for a time was an instructor in materia medica there.

Later he was professor of materia medica and therapeutics in the University of California medical school and since 1927 has been head of that department at Hahnemann.

Dr. Boericke is the author of a number of bouchures on medical subjects and of a text book on materia medica used at Hahnemann and other medical schools.

Lightning Strikes Chimney

The chimney and roof of the home of E. C. Griswold, 1 Chestnut avenue, Narberth, was struck by lightning during the storm last Friday afternoon. The bolt shattered the chimney and damaged plaster in one room, but did not cause a fire.

Main Line Scout Troops Place in District Camporee

Winners in the Boy Scout Camporee, held by troops of the Main Line, Eastern and Norristown sections of the Delaware and Montgomery Counties District on the Mattison Estate, Ambler, were announced recently.

Wynnewood Troop, No. 1, was the only Main Line winner of the Standard A certificates and camping medallions. Standard B certificates were won by Bala-Cynwyd Troops Nos. 1 and 2; Merion, No. 1; Haverford, No. 1, and Narberth, No. 1. Bala, No. 1, won a Standard C rating in this contest, held between over two hundred scouts, representing twenty-two troops.

Meet at Mrs. Breerwood's

The Literature Group of the Women's Community Club of Narberth held a meeting on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Charles Breerwood, on Elmwood avenue. The next meeting of the group will be held on July 5 at the home of Mrs. Walter J. Odiorne, 321 Merion avenue, at 1.30 P. M.

The Starling

When the shooting of starlings was recommended several weeks ago by Isaac R. Pennypacker, of Ardmore, no end of discussion was stirred up. The defenders of the bird pointed immediately to its value as a controlling enemy of the Japanese beetle. If the consumption of the grubs of this other imported pest were the alpha and omega of the story of the starling, we would agree heartily with the defenders of the bird, but this is not the case.

We do not advocate the wiping out of the species, if that were possible, but some sort of control is sadly needed in many parts of the country. The European starling, known to science as sturnus vulgaris, was imported many years ago in the hope that it would aid in insect control. This same thought governed those who brought the English sparrow to these shores, and, as in the case of the latter bird, the bad features of the immigrants have outweighed their advantages.

The starling, in general appearance resembling a common blackbird, is smaller, with a short tail and with plumage brightly speckled when seen at close view. In the summer the birds nest in isolated pairs or very loose colonies of a score or more birds, and in the winter gather in or near the cities in flocks whose numbers have become prodigious.

Though they are persistent and valuable enemies of the beetle, the starlings cancel a great deal of their value in this respect by driving away other birds. Few hole-nesting species have any chance against the pugnacious starlings, and the loss of these other beneficial species removes enemies of insects of all kinds.

But the menace of the starling lies in its tremendous growth in numbers. From a handful of birds the number in this country has grown beyond the imagination of anyone who has not visited the winter roosts of the bird. Any Main Line resident who observed the Ardmore roost last winter will not need to be told.

For months a flock of the birds, conservatively estimated at over TWO MILLION roosted in the trees of an estate on East Lancaster avenue. The weight of this prodigious company broke down the limbs of the shade trees. The droppings burned and ruined the shrubbery and coated the ground to a depth of an inch or more. A woods which was a thing of beauty is only partially recovered from a condition of absolute desolation.

In cities the millions of starlings roosting about the larger buildings make a complete mess of their surroundings and cause the wise pedestrian to walk in the street. What will we face in a few short years if this invader continues to multiply without check? Few native birds can stand the competition, and the lost bluebirds, martins, woodpeckers, etc., will have a poor substitute in this noisy, quarrelsome bird.

Shooting is wasteful and dangerous, but wholesale trapping in winter might succeed, with a possible advantage in the creation of food for those who need it. Half of the starlings in the country could be removed, and there would be more than enough to perform whatever good they can claim are fit for. Control is needed, and needed at once.

The Literary Inquest

Conducted by Richard Powell

All the nice old reviewers are going to don their Santa Claus beards and praise Kathleen Coyle's "The French Husband" (New York: E. P. Dutton. $2.50), for if the public taste that made Anne Green's "The Selbys" a best seller three years ago remains, this book will be a success. Reviewers are notoriously humble before success. If we dissent from the laudatory chorus, it is because we would hate to see Mrs. Coyle rest content with her present work.

Briefly, the plot concerns the misunderstandings that arise between an American girl and her French husband through their divergent national characteristics. Mrs. Coyle follows the modern Franco-American school (of which Ernest Hemingway leads the left wing and Julian Green the right) in blending American humor with the Gallic indirection of presenting emotions. It might be well to warn some readers not to delve too deeply for hidden meanings; the undercurrents are just below the surface.

Whenever an author uses unadorned prose, as does Mrs. Coyle, reviewers exclaim over its beauty. This seems to easy a way to acquire such a reputation. Our own yardstick for measuring artistic simplicity is the writing of Willa Cather and Thornton Wilder. Rather does The French Husband" possess a feminine lightness of touch which is an admirable show window for its farce. Kathleen Coyle has faults—among which are a restraint verging on obscurity and a tendency to include extraneous details—but she achieves her effects in spite of them.

"Brief Rapture," by Polan Banks. (New York: Harrison Smith, $2.) We can quite understand why this novel was a favorite on Hollywood's reading lists. Its title meets the motion picture ideal of perfection—vapid sex appeal. "Brief Rapture" has as little connection with its story as "Years of Grace" and "Shadows On the Rock" had much. True, Banks' heroine finds that her love affairs prove only to be brief raptures, but then she has no difficulty in finding other moments of bliss.

It is a neurotic account of a girl who searches for a man to fulfill her physical, mental and spiritual desires. In it, the author has accomplished some very uneven work. Partly this is caused by his attempt to weld together the opposite techniques of the plotted novel and the character novel. His best results are in the latter, but here also he is inconsistent. Part of his psychology is excellent, while some appears to be drawn from a magazine article by Faith Baldwin, in which she presented her usual banalities on the art of interesting a woman.

The author is also much more impressed by his descriptions of high society and his use of famous names than his readers will be. Mr. Banks' undoubted talents will shine to better advantage when he ceases to compromise with facile sensationalism.

Hearsay Evidence

Said the Macaulay Company to itself, "Let's beat the movies in capitalizing this Ivar Krueger business." So the public is due to have its interest "captured" in July by the issue of "The Match King," by Einar Thorvaldson, a novel closely paralleling the career of the Swedish financier. On the other hand, the book really might be good.

Writers' conferences will be much more numerous this summer than ever before, perhaps because writers have nothing else to do. Middlebury College and Columbia University will draw the usual cream of the talent. Summer colonies for authors are getting into full swing. The most popular of these are Carmel in California, Woodstock in New York, and Provincetown in Massachusetts—remember "Love Among the Cape-Enders?" (Yes, they are called conferences...)

Burt & Company have snatched some of the Edgar Wallace novels from under the noses of Doubleday Doran.

Authors have been called to arms against the encroachments of publishers, who have been insinuating that a cut of money from any film rights would be very, very nice. Since film rights are generally more lucrative than publication royalties, this practice is not popular with the scriveners.

Shreds & Patches

Prominent Speaker

A candidate for the Presidency of the United States came and spoke on the Main Line last week Tuesday evening. He was greeted by an audience which taxed the seating capacity of the hall. He is a leading publicist and writer, a man of sound education, strong intellect and long experience in political campaigning. Yet the Philadelphia newspapers practically ignored him. The reason for that is of course due to the fact that he is Norman Thomas, the socialist. He spoke at Roberts Hall, Haverford college, and what he had to say was rather strong medicine for any complacent minded person to hear. Yet, as things are now, the socialists are comparatively a conservative party. They do not advocate revolutionary direct action. Their program, like that of the founders of this Republic, seriously aims to advance the greatest good of the greatest number, and it is one that has been formulated with care by some of the best minds of the race during the past 50 years or more. It is not born of the expediencies of the moment. The present economic decrepitude adds strength and force to their arguments. What is the average citizen going to do about it, open his ears and his mind, or stick his head in the sand in the expectancy that when he pulls it out at some later day, the skies will have cleared, the sun of prosperity will be shining and new little banks will be opening again here and there all ready to gamble again with the peoples' savings until another depression closes all of them again disastrously?

Religion and Peace

The audience who listened to Norman Thomas was not composed of active socialists, so far as The Vagrant could judge. Probably a majority of the people there might have been classed as liberals, but their unquestionably were some conservatives Yet, at the conclusion, when Mr. Thomas submitted to questioning, the only people who seemed by their questions to be advancing counter-arguments were those of a conventionally religious point of view, the idealistic and devout Christians. Mr. Thomas had not been speaking on socialism as such, but on "Planning for Peace," and it seemed to the religionists that he had ignored that part which could be played in any such program by organized religion and by God. Mr. Thomas undoubtedly tempered his answers with the courtesy that was due to the time and the place, but there was scorn and irony in his replies, and force of fact in his citations of the failure of organized religion to advance the cause of peace among men. The religionists made no attempt to defend their position.

Money Matters

The Vagrant discovered last week, while reading about Horace Walpole, that Dean Swift, whom The Vagrant has never read, had long ago provided a formula which The Vagrant had long been seeking. It is that a man should have money in his head, but not in his heart. Money must be frequently considered by intelligent persons. It must not be wasted, it can rightly be desired and sought as a means to much that makes life worth while, but its corrosive powers are devastating and the mercenary mind is not admired even in this commercial age. How to consider money with care, to get it and keep some of it, to invest it wisely and safely, and yet not let it dominate one's life, that is a problem which The Vagrant had often considered and in considering it had vacillated in practice from withering closeness to foolish liberality, and there was Dean Swift, who more than two centuries ago had summed up the whole problem in one sentence. One must look into the Dean further and see whether his philospohy worked well in his own case.

THE VAGRANT

BUSINESS BITS

Several good shows at the Narberth Theatre this week; during warm weather matinees are being given daily; the management is getting some nice new chair covers.

John Drizin's store, we are informed, closed because shoe manufacturers shut off his credit, at a very inconvenient time. At the recent sale of stock and fixtures, several odds and ends were bid in by other storekeepers here.

Howard F. Cotter and his son, Jack, left Wednesday night for a month abroad. They plan to visit France and Germany, seeing some of the places missed by Mr. Cotter last summer when he attended the Rotary convention in Vienna. During his father's absence, Howard, Jr., is handling the store's affairs.

Carroll Brothers' meat market is moving diagonally across the street to the store next door to Davis'. The Narberth Hardware, whose stock is being given a final sale this week, is expected to close definitely this Saturday.

The Majestic Electric Shop is advertising repairing of vacuum cleaners, etc., believing that people who don't buy electric appliances, at least must find it worth while to keep them in good condition.

Three shoe repair shops are advertising in "Our Town" this week: Louis Evangelos' United Shoe Repair and Hat Cleaning, near the theatre; B. G. Constantine's Goodwear Shoe Repair on Haverford avenue, next door to the Narberth Coal Office, and William Garze, of West Philadelphia, who is the new proprietor of the Reliable Shoe Repair, up the hill on Narberth avenue. Mr. Garze has had 1 years' experience in making, as well as repairing, shoes, and for people with unusual feet he offers to make shoes to order.

In case you didn't know it, the Goodwear Shoe Repair is only part of the livelihood of the Constantines. For many years they have operated two large stores in Ocean City Manor, New Jersey, for the sale of bathing suits, clothing and other supplies. So far this summer Mr. Constantine is running his Narberth business, while his wife and two sons are handling the stores at the shore; accompanying them is Jim Thomas, also of Narberth. Their season is from June 1 to the end of September. Joe Constantine has just graduated from Brown Prep, Philadelphia, and is planning to study to become a pharmacist. His brother, Gus, has just graduated from St. Joseph's, at City Line, and is going to study electrical engineering at Villanova.

Mrs. Suzanne Joret Gill's beauty salon at her home on Dudley avenue is attracting lots of favorable comment these days. Among the interesting features are a real cure, at last, for baldness and falling hair, and a permanent wave that is inexpensive, heatless and weightless!

Judging from signs here and at the seashore, more people are staying home and enjoying the Main Line's summer comforts this year than for many previous seasons. As a result, some of the more progressive business folk here are planning to offer more than the usual commodities and services to make householders' days and nights more comfortable and enjoyable.

Speaking of summer, excursions are being advertised here this week by the Pennsylvania Railroad and Greyhound bus lines.....And the F. A. Bartlett Tree Expert Co. advertises its spraying service to stop the Japanese beetles' ruinous invasion.

Christian Kirsch, of the Kirsch Chevrolet Co., Bala avenue, headquarters for Bala-Cynwyd and Narberth Chevrolet sales and service, gives an encouraging opinion about business conditions. He says that throughout the country 85 per cent. more Chevrolets were sold at retail in April than in March, that April sales were 6000 units greater than production, and that sales in the last ten-day period of April exceeded either of the other two periods of the month by 5000 new cars and trucks. "This is all the more encouraging," Mr. Kirsch said, "because every new car represents the equivalent of 71 days of work for people scattered throughout the United States. People able to afford new cars are now, we hope, coming into the market in the realization that one of the biggest single contributions they can make to national business recovery is to buy their new cars now."—(By T. But it's the Fourth of July collection we are talking about, that dollar or two which we need from you, and never mind the girls on the beach, and if you will please send your stipend to the treasurer, Mr. J. L. McCrery, at the Bank, he will be very happy about it, and so will we all of us.

Founding of Lower Merion Academy to be Commemorated

boarding school with day scholars, and the teacher was allowed the use of the dwelling and grounds in return for his tuition of the free scholars. There was no distinction as to sex.

For a time "free scholars" were looked down upon, so much so that at one time it was seriously proposed to erect a separate building for them. Rather than contend with the strife between poor and paying scholars, the first teacher, Joshua Hoopes, resigned, to found a successful Friend's School in West Chester. Friends of the institution decided segregation would defeat the intent of the founder's will, whose first purpose was to provide free education. The difficulty was adjusted by doing away with the paid scholars and making all tuition free.

Next teacher was John Levering, antiquarian of note, who in 1851 made an admirable map of Lower Merion. Another early teacher was Miss Lydia Coggins, who died in 1912 at the age of 97. Respected as headmaster of the Academy for 25 years was Israel Irwin.

Many scholars from the Academy became well known. Among them: Charles Naylor, Representative in Congress from Philadelphia, 1840: Joseph Fornance, Representative in Congress from Montgomery County in the early 40's, the Congressman who sent Winfield Scott Hancock to West Point; Prof. James Rhoads, of the Boys' Central High School, Philadelphia; Rev. James Rush Anderson, D. D.; Dr. Richard Jones Harvey, who graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1832, one of the California pioneers of 1849, Algernon Roberts, of the Pencoyd Iron Works; and George B. Roberts, who was president of the Pennsylvania Railroad for for many years before his death.

The ground on which the Academy stands rises above the picturesque ravine known as Rock Hollow. It was on this road that the Americans passed to reach Old Lancaster road now Montgomery pike to the place where they camped, near Merion Meeting House, September 14, 1777.

Down Rock Hollow, now Rock Hill road on the banks of the winding stream known as Rock Creek, stands an old ruined mill. During the Revolutionary period, this was Lloyd Jones' paper mill. After the Continental paper money had so depreciated in value as to become utterly worthless, it was called in by our young government and destroyed at this mill. This spot in Lower Merion, then, ended the conditions that originated the phrase, "Not worth a Continental."

The Academy looks now much as it did a century or so ago: broad piazza with brick floor and flag-stone steps; posts supported at the base by iron pivots; tiny, square window panes; desks clumsy and heavy; all showing the age of the building, and especially the hollows in the steps, worn by the tramp of many feet.

Salaries paid at this "free school of Montgomery," according to a Gwynedd minister and principal, were so high that the Academy was more popular than other schools, and so more competent teachers were obtained. At one time the salary was $160 a year. The teacher collected this pay at the rate of from a dollar to ten shillings per quarter, for each scholar. He obtained his board by going from house to house among parents of his students. It was a remark of the time that people would trust to instruct their children a teacher to whom they would not lend a horse.

Eventually the Academy may be replaced by a Junior High School building for the growing population of Bala-Cynwyd.

Original trustees of the Lower Merion Academy were Jonathan Jones, Algernon Roberts, Henry Bowman, Jonathan Walters and David Roberts. Present trustees: Jonathan Jones, H. C. Irwin, George Grow, T. Williams Roberts and Luther C. Parsons.

Local Movies

What's at Narberth

Spencer Tracy, William (Stage) Boyd and Ann Dvorak are the increasingly popular stars who make "Sky Devils" as spectacular as "Hell's Angels" and funnier than "Two Arabian Knights." Playing at Narberth this week-end, "Sky Devils" is an exciting, funny Howard Hughes production about aviators at war in the air and in cafes. Matinees, by the way, are being given at Narberth every day.

Entertaining satire is "It's Tough to Be Famous," in which Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., stars at Narberth next Monday and Tuesday. It's about a hero whose happiness is nearly destroyed by parades and hero worship until he rebels and the public is attracted to another.

"Dancers in the Dark," next Wednesday and Thursday, features Miriam Hopkins and Jack Oakie; interesting and well acted. The feature next week-end is "Tarzan, the Ape Man," as thrilling and pleasing a film as could be asked for; cast includes Swimmer Johnny Weissmuller, Maureen O'Sullivan, an intelligent chimpanzee, a tribe of ferocious pygmies, and lots of elephants.

At the Egyptian

"But the Flesh Is Weak," at the Egyptian this Friday and Saturday nights, is described by the Civic Club of Philadelphia as "light and sparkling comedy of a charming old roue and his son (Robert Montgomery), who endeavor to live by their wits. ....Treatment (by Jack Conway, who directed 'Arene Lupin') is farcical, bordering on the absurd, but entertaining for the sophisticated." Because it is not recommended for young people under 18, Saturday's matinee will substitute for it Ken Maynard in "The Arizona Terror."

Always amusing are Charles Murray, George Sidney, etc., in pictures such as "The Cohens and Kellys in Hollywood," which will play at Cynwyd next Monday and Tuesday. The Ladies' Home Journal describes it as "A sparkling drama done with a note of truth and pathos." Recommended for the family.

"Alias, The Doctor," next Wednesday and Thursday, tells of the self-sacrifice of a medical student to protect his brother; "forms the basis of a convincing story.....For adults and young adults." Richard Barthelmess, Marian Marsh, Norman Foster, etc.

"Man Wanted," next Friday and Saturday, is a sophisticated romance, starring Kay Francis with a modern and rather unusual angle.

Varied Program Announced at Hedgerow Next Week

The program for next week at the Hedgerow Theatre in Rose Valley is a well-balanced one that includes varieties of both comedy and serious drama. Three English plays, one Russian, and two from the pens of important American writers are to be given, with an especially interesting week-end planned. On Monday night Shaws laugh-provoking "You Never Can Tell" will be presented, to be followed on Tuesday by Chekhov's moving drama of old Russia, "The Sea Gull." Wednesday's show is A. A. Milne's beautiful comedy of the girl who should have lived in the days of knights and tournaments, "because they would have suited her so well," "The Romantic Age." The newest play in the repertory, built on the subject of basic integrity in races—particularly of the American Indian—is "The Cheroke Night," by Lynn Riggs, and it will be performed on Thursday night.

Eugene O'Neill's "The Emperor Jones," with Arthur Rich in the central role, will be played for the first time in a month on Friday night, and the week will close on Saturday night with a performance of "Heartbreak House," by Shaw, in which Jasper Deeter, Jean Sweidel, Cele McLaughlin, Carl Reukauff, and Herbert Walton will be seen in important parts.

Tonight at Hedgerow Milne's "Mr. Pim Passes By" has its first performance of the year, and tomorrow night Shaw's "You Never Can Tell" is the show.

Wins Honors at Jr. High

William D. Humes, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. B. Humes, of 306 S. Narberth avenue, Narberth, won the 1926 Scholarship Cup at Lower Merion Junior High School at the recent presentation of awards with an average of 93.65. He also won the American Legion Citizenship Medal, presented by the Bullock-Sanderson Post, of Ardmore, and honorable mention in the Merion Chapter, D. A. R., History award.

Davismen Turn Defeat Into Victory, Downing Paoli 9-5

Thus the entire picture took on a different hue and the Davismen, fully aroused at last, snapped out of the lethargy entirely, adding two more runs just for good measure, and kept their record unstained in league competition.

Narberth had been in a tough spot in the third when the Umbachmen added three runs to take the lead by a four-run margin. Incidentally, there was a rumor that Umbach no longer was manager and that Charley Madden had returned to pilot the defending champs. This was put at rest by Madden himself. "Umbach still is manager. I am president," he said, "and will act as his assistant. Barney is still in full charge and will continue to be so."

Sam Potter began the trouble in their big inning by receiving a life on Doc Walker's miscue at the hot corner. Toddy Sims skied to left, but Jack Eachus, Ursinus captain, singled and Potter tallied when Harry King tossed wildly to second in an attempted assist on Tompkins' tap. George Girard's smoky single, which followed, chased across the other two runs.

Doc Walker thrilled the large gathering in the seventh by poling a long three-bagger to the road in center, while Harry King's double in the first inning took second distance honors. Walker led the homesters with a trio of safeties. Potter and Girard shared high honors for the losers with two apiece.

Eighth Grade Pupils Are Guests at Party

The farewell party held Tuesday evening, June the fourteenth, and the awarding of prizes for scholarship terminated the Eighth Grade activities at the Narberth School. Next year they become students at Lower Merion.

The party given by the Parent-Teachers' Association was a very festive occasion. The tables in the lunch room were attractively decorated with bouquets of roses and candlebrae. After refreshments were served Mrs. Samuel McCartney, retiring president, welcomed the class. Impromptu speeches by Mrs. W. G. Briner, newly-elected president, and W. J. Drennen, principal of the school, followed. Betty Kennedy read the class prophecy and then with Helen Chubb and Lawson Yow assisting, presented the gifts, which, judging from the amusement and applause, showed them to be appropriate.

The class sang a number of its songs and then adjourned to the main floor, where the remainder of the evening was spent in social activities.

This will be the last Sunday for special music, which begins at 10.50 A. M.

"Babe" Bowes Wins Girls' Tennis Title for District

Cecile (Babe) Bowes, of 333 Trevor lane, Cynwyd, won the Philadelphia and district girls' tennis championship by defeating Mary Mattson, of Germantown, her jinx, in the finals for the past two years, at the Philadelphia Cricket Club last Saturday. The scores were 7-5, 0-6, 6-1. Later she paired with Miss Mattson to annex the doubles title, defeating Elizabeth Goodman and Hope Starr, 6-1, 7-5.

Babe, who graduated recently from Mater Misericordiae Academy, Merion, played some of the best tennis of her career in defeating her three-time rival. After faltering in the second set, which Miss Mattson won without the loss of a game, Babe came back strong in the third, gaining a 5 love lead before her opponent captured her only game.

Honored by Penn

Three residents of Merion were honored at the commencement exercises of the University of Pennsylvania on Wednesday. Mrs. Mary Louise Curtis Bok, president of the Curtis Institute of Music, received the degree of doctor of humane letters, while the honorary degree of doctor of laws was conferred upon Dr. Warren Powers Laird, who is retiring as dean of the School of Fine Arts at the University after forty years' service. The same honorary degree was conferred upon William Purves Gest, chairman of the Board of Directors of the Fidelity-Philadelphia Trust Co., and chairman of the U. of P. Progress Committee.

Made Art Club Officer

Richard T. Dooner, of Penn Valley, has been elected vice-president of the Art Director Club of Philadelphia. Mr. Dooner is a photographer with a studio at 1724 Chestnut street.

Miller Vets Defeat Aces

The Miller Veterans defeated the Aces by the score of 9 to 6 on Monday on the Narberth School Field. Case, pitcher for the Miller Vets, allowed the Aces three hits, being in but one tight spot, when he issued two bases on balls coupled with an error. Shea, of the Aces, hit a double, tying the score 4-4. The Miller Vets collected 10 safeties off Claffey. Claffey also pitched a pretty good game, but had poor support. A spectacular catch was made by Miller, who threw the runner out at first.

The line-up: Miller Vets—Cook, c; Whitney, 3b; Spencer, ss; Forrman, 1b; Crowell, 2b; Bob Tyson, rf; C. Spencer, lf; Miller, cf; Case, p. Aces—Meehan, c; Roser, 3b; O'Conner, ss; Shea, 1b; S. O'Conner, 2b; J. O'Conner, rf; Jumbo, lf; Baker, cf; Claffey, p.

Library Travel Club for Children is Under Way

The Library Travel Club for children began its work this past week, stimulated by children who had joined in previous years and by parents who were encouraging them to join once more. Miss Churchs' plans for the work follow the same outline as in previous years and the little folks will read according to their grade a list of boks about other lands and other people.

The maps are ready to be outlined and in fact there are several at this time that are very attractively colored, preparatory to indicating with stars the countries that have been visited by means of books. There will be no note books this year for recording criticisms, but instead Miss Church and Miss Christ will question the children to see how much has been learned through the reading, and as usual certificates will be awarded to those who complete the course.

The list of books arranged according to grades is mounted on the bulletin board in the children's department and in connection with it are colorful posters designed by F. L. Warren, and published by the National Child Welfare Association, of New York, each one an illustration of some feature of the more important countries. Details regarding the work may be learned by consulting the librarians.
